TAILOR ED WORKSHOPS

We run a series of workshops for families listed below. Each series runs twice a year and we try to change the time and venue with each series to make them accessible to a greater number of people.

Understanding Autism: provides our most up to date understanding of autism and includes examples of how autism affects different people in different ways.

Understanding Problem Behaviour: focuses on identifying and understanding the reasons children with autism can display problem behaviour and principles for addressing this.

Models in Practice: gives examples of how the models explained in the Understanding Autism and Understanding Problem Behaviour workshops can be used to support children in specific areas.

Introducing Systems that Support Understanding: There are several teaching techniques and communication systems that the Tailor Ed team have found helpful in supporting a variety of daily living activities and skills. In this workshop we'll cover how to design and implement these effectively at home. We will include supports such as sand timers, visual timetables, choice boards and reward charts.

Social Stories & Comic Strip Conversations: covers two approaches that can be used to support clear communication between you and your child. Social Stories are useful in providing relevant information about social situations and Comic Strip Conversations can be used to facilitate conversation with your child and help them to consider thoughts and feelings.

Sign-a-long: This is open to parents who would like to be taught a range of functional signs and also learn when and how to apply signing most effectively to support communication. We run this if people get in touch to ask for this particular workshop.

Teaching play skills: This workshop covers techniques that can help a child with autism develop their play skills. This includes playing independently and with others as well as approaches to introducing them to new interests. Please note that as with all other workshops, this is not for children to attend.

All events are advertised on our website <http://tailoredfoundation.co.uk/>. We will also send you invites if you are a member of our Facebook discussion group.
